Although he never graduated, RAYMOND GERALD NEIZER always kindled the Dartmouth spirit. Jerry died on October 13, 1981, in Salem, Mass., after a long illness. He left Dartmouth and entered the Air Force as a corpsman, which led him into the field of medical technology. While in the service, Jerry became disabled with multiple sclerosis; he retired from the Air Force in 1961. Living at home, he worked with Salem's New Tourist Commission and was active in Dartmouth alumni activities. He leaves his mother, a brother, and a sister.

HUDSON YIELDING AYLWIN II died suddenly of a heart attack on September 18, 1981. Pat entered Dartmouth from Bexley, Ohio, High School and in college was a member of Sigma Chi. He lived most of his life in Columbus, Ohio.

At the time of his death, Pat was a stock-broker with Butcher and Singer Inc. He leaves his wife Corle and their three children; two daughters from a previous marriage also survive him.

Those of us who knew Pat well will miss a loyal friend.

On December 3, 1981, the class lost a dear friend in JAMES ANDREWS FOOTE. His life was taken in a tragic automobile accident in New York City. That Jim was taken from us so suddenly has left us all with an overwhelming feeling of shock and helplessness. Jim was so young and his life held such promise. He was a close friend to many, and all those who knew him will deeply feel the loss.

Jim came to Dartmouth from Darien, Conn. In high school, Jim was an active and concerned member of Explorer Post 53, a volunteer ambulance and emergency care group which served his community. During his tenure as president, and largely due to his unselfish dedication, Post 53 earned designation as the primary response unit in Darien. In addition, Post 53, under Jim's leadership, received numerous national awards recognizing its significant contribution to the community.

This typified Jim's efforts at the College. He gave so much of himself to his friends and asked so little in return. His dependability, quiet competence, and loyalty are some of the virtues for which we admired Jim.

In many ways, Jim represented the true importance of Dartmouth. His unflinching loyalty to his College, his fraternity, and his friends, in his own unpretentious manner, was appreciated as one of his finest qualities. Those who shared his friendship will always remember the warmth and happiness he exuded through his fine sense of humor and his fondness for life.

Many friends came from all over the country to honor Jim's life. The class, as well as countless friends, extend their deepest sympathy to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert S. Foote '47, his brother John '78, his sister-in-law Mary Clare, and the entire Foote family.
