

Steven Wesley Draheim

died August 31, 1996, in San Francisco after a long illness. He was a vice president at Marsh and McLennan Insurance Brokers. A native of Waseca, Minn., Steve was a member of both the marching and concert bands at Dartmouth and a participant in Army R.O.T.C. He earned a law degree from the University of Michigan in 1969 and served two years in the army. He is survived by his partner, Brian Christianson, parents, and two sisters.

Julian Stuart Ferris

died at his home in Houston on November 14, 1996. He was executive vice president and general counsel of Arruth Associates, his family's real-estate business. Julian came to Dartmouth from Manhasset (N.Y.) High School. At the College he was cited for outstanding academic achievement in Spanish, was vice president of the International Relations Club, and was inducted into Phi Beta Kappa. He went on to earn a law degree from Harvard University and an M.B.A. from Columbia University. Julian married the former Rhoda Kaufman, Vassar '66. His brother, Allen, is a '64.

Edward Harriman Northrop

was struck by a car and killed July 16, 1996, while training for an international bicycle race in Harriman State Park in Orange County, N.Y. Ned was chairman of XICOM Inc., a management consulting and publishing firm. Prior to joining XICOM Ned was a deputy manager with the private banking firm of Brown Brothers Harriman & Co. An avid sportsman, Ned had competed in the Hawaii Ironman triathlon, participated in international cross-country ski races, and enjoyed long-distance cycling. At the College he was a member of Sigma Nu Delta, and participated in crew and the Dartmouth Outing Club. A member of Army R.O.T.C., Ned spent the two years following graduation as an Air Defense artillery team commander. He earned an M.B.A. from the Colgate-Darden School of Business Administration at the University of Virginia. Ned was divorced and has two children, Wilhelm and Marjorie.

Charles E. Wilmont Jr.

died at Norwalk (Conn.) Hospital on Sunday, December 29, 1996, after a long battle with cancer. His wife, Marsha, and daughters Amy and Jeanne were at his side. Charlie came to Hanover from Stamford (Conn.) High School and began 34 years of service to and caring about Dartmouth. A history major and brother of Kappa Sigma, Charlie was active on The Dartmouth, rising to executive editor (and writing one of the first editorials in favor of co-education, which came five years after he graduated). He also was a member of ROTC, The Dartmouth Conservative Union, and Green Key. After graduation Charlie won a Dartmouth general fellowship to study modern European and Russian history at the University of Chicago. Charlie's career took him into financial planning and later, insurance with MetLife. He served stints as class newsletter editor and class secretary, and as a major force in the Dartmouth Club of Fairfield County, including five years as president in the 1980s.

1973

Sylvester Russell

of Memphis, Tenn., died at home of respiratory failure on August 14, 1995. Sylvester came to Dartmouth from Central High School in Memphis, where he was a staff member of the school newspaper and a class officer. At Dartmouth Sylvester majored in history and was a member of the Afro-American Society. He spent a term off campus in Clarksdale, Miss., as a Tucker Foundation teaching intern. Sylvester was also an active member of Dartmouth Dance and the Dartmouth Players. At the time of his death Sylvester was a juvenile court counselor in Memphis and a member of Macedonia Baptist Church in Hyde Park, Tenn. He is survived by his mother, Rosie Lee Russell, two sisters, and four brothers.

1978

LeRoy Benjamin Hobby

died on October 30, 1996, in Boston, where he had been a student at Harvard Divinity School. Roy grew up in Yonkers, N.Y., and graduated from Yonkers High. After Dartmouth, he worked at investment banks in New York, including Security Pacific and Shearson Lehman Brothers. In 1987 he moved to Portland, Maine, where he worked in computer software sales and later joined Shearson's Portland office as a broker. While in Portland Roy was active in drug and alcohol abuse prevention programs and he enjoyed the outdoors—hiking, camping, canoeing, and skiing. In 1994 he moved to Boston to pursue a master's degree at Harvard Divinity School. For the past two years he was a volunteer who counseled Boston-area high school students about drug and AIDS prevention. He is survived by his mother, Ann, and brother John B. Hobby.

Nick Pishvanov Jr.

died on October 28, 1995, of leukemia. He is survived by his wife, Ellen, and children Nicholas III, Alexis, and Kristin. They live in Farmington Hills, Mich., where Nick had been a senior engineer with Metromec OSM Inc. Nick was an especially kind, vibrant person. At Dartmouth he was a math/engineering major, captain of the men's gymnastics team, and active in SAE. He received his M.S. from Thayer in 1980. Tim Burke '78 writes, "I had the privilege of being Nick's roommate during our freshman year at Dartmouth, and his great sense of humour, kindness, and enthusiasm were part of why I was able to adjust pretty easily to Dartmouth life. Nick took things in stride. He was gracious, generous, and unbelievably patient. He had a gift for accepting the curveballs life threw at him. Although we lost touch with one another after Dartmouth, I will always remember him warmly."

1980

Kenneth Wayne Wheatley

of Seaside, Calif., died December 5, 1996, from injuries suffered in an automobile accident in Monterey. An avid golfer, Kenneth had been a caddy with the Pebble Beach Co. for ten years. Before starting a full day of walking the links and giving advice at Pebble Beach, Kenneth would smoke a cigar. He always said it was his last one, but his fellow caddies never believed him. They remembered him as a family man who was always professional. Kenneth was fascinated by trivia and was writing a book about it. He was a computer buff, a past member of Amnesty International, and a member of the Caddy Golfing Club and of Alcoholics Anonymous. Kenneth is survived by his wife, Joni, two-year-old son William, brothers Glenn and William, and mother Louise.

Memorial contributions may be made to the William Kenneth Wheatley Trust Account, c/o Bank of America, 1451 Fremont Blvd., Seaside, CA 93955.

1983

Wilbert Ahmed Anderson

died February 7, 1995, in Richmond, Va., after an illness of several months. At Dartmouth Wilbert was an executive committee member of the African-American Association and served on the advisory committee to the College president. He was also very active in the Dartmouth Players, the Black Underground Theater and Arts Ensemble, Gospel Choir, and as a member of Casque & Gauntlet. After graduating with a major in economics, Wilbert went on to Harvard Business School and then to New York to work in marketing at R.H. Macy & Co. At the time of his death he was a senior executive, buyer fine watches, for Macy's East and an active member of the Black Retail Action Group. He is survived by his mother, Irma L. Anderson, and brother Ahmed J. Anderson.

1989

Karl Edward Clancy Olguin

died July 4, 1996, of a heart attack at age 29. After graduating with a degree in religion, he returned home to Santa Fe to work as a late-night disc jockey for KBAC radio. A passionate fan of such musicians as the Grateful Dead, Karl also worked the Santa Fe club scene as a bouncer and as a sound technician for bands such as the Lost Souls. Friends remember his buoyant, engaging personality, and his pride in his Native-American heritage. Then there was his sometimes outrageous sense of humor, on display one recent Halloween when he dressed as Elvis in a king-sized, white-sequined jumpsuit made by his mother. Karl could hold forth knowledgeably on an extremely wide range of topics, from stock-car racing to religious philosophy. Karl is survived by parents John and Mary Olguin, grandmother Caroline, sister Carol, and brothers Shawn and John-Mark.

1994

Cheryl Lynn Pinkerton

died on December 4, 1996, in Cairo, Egypt, due to complications arising from diabetes. Cheryl was one of a handful of students chosen to study Arabic on a year-long scholarship at the prestigious and competitive Center for Arabic Studies Abroad at the American University in Cairo. At Dartmouth Cheryl was an Asian studies major, and was very interested in Middle Eastern culture and language. She was involved in theater, working as a stage manager for various productions including West Side Story and The Magician's Nephew. Cheryl was president of Xi Kappa Chi/Kappa Delta Epsilon sorority, and played an instrumental role in the sorority's "transition" and the formation of KDE. She remained in Hanover after graduation to work with a professor in the Asian studies department. Cheryl had recently received admission to a master's program at Georgetown University. She is survived by her parents, Waneta and E. Dwight Pinkerton.

1996

Heidi Hachtel

died in an automobile accident on December 20, 1996, near Skykomish, Wash. She had been driving with her father, Stephen Hachtel, who was also killed. Heidi came to Dartmouth from Juanita High School in Kirkland, Wash. She graduated with a major in engineering, and at the time of her death was a graduate student at the Thayer School. Heidi spent four years on the varsity soccer team, and served as the team goalie. She was also a member of the Dartmouth Formula Racing Team, and helped take the team's car to competition in May 1996. An avid fan of the outdoors, Heidi loved to hike and climb, and was a certified ski instructor. She spent many hours visiting with friends at the Collis Center's Lone Pine Tavern.

Heidi is survived by her mother, Suzette Swensson; sisters Heather Roberts and Holly Hachtel; and grandparents Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hachtel, Geraldine Noble, and Kenneth Swensson.