DAVID ABRAHAMS died on June 28 in Hyampom, Calif., where he had his professional offices. At the time of his death, he was assistant chief of psychiatry at the University of California Psychiatric Hospital.

As an undergraduate Dave was a member of the staff of the Dartmouth Quarterly. He was a member of Phi Beta Kappa and AOA honorary fraternities. He graduated from the Dartmouth Medical School, cum laude, in 1953 and went on to Harvard Medical School where he received his M.D. in 1955. While still in medical school he married Emmy Lou Phillips.

Dave practiced psychiatry and psychoanalysis in Los Angeles from 1959 until 1971 and was an instructor at the Los Angeles Institute for Psychoanalysis. From 1971 until his death he lived with his family in San Francisco. He was a member of the San Francisco Psychoanalytic Institute and a fellow of the American Psychiatric Association.

As reported by classmate Frank Chase, RONALD LEE SCHREIBER succumbed to cancer August 12 at the Greater Baltimore Medical Center.

A Baltimore lawyer, Ron graduated from the University of Maryland Law School in 1958 and in 1969 was named by newly elected Governor Marvin Mandel as a legislative aide. He remained active in this capacity and as a lobbyist until 1977. He was then named director of Maryland's new Health Claims Arbitration Office. A partner of several law firms during his active career, Ron was a member of the local Dartmouth alumni group and enjoyed duck hunting as one of his favorite pastimes.

At Dartmouth, Ron majored in government and was a member of Pi Lambda Phi as well as the Air Force R.O.T.C.

The class extends its sympathy to his wife Faith and his son and daughter.

MILES MARTIN DONIS, novelist, screenwriter, and former advertising director of Columbia Pictures, died December 20, 1979, after being struck by a car in Hollywood, Calif.

Miles came to the College from Central High School in Scranton, Penn. He majored in English and was the editor-in-chief of Jack-O-Lantern as well as a member of the Undergraduate Council, Green Key, and The Dartmouth staff.

At the time of his death, Miles was teaching film at Columbia College in Los Angeles and working on a novel. His career after Dartmouth included a brief stint as a reporter for the Boston Globe. He then spent 16 years in the motion-picture advertising business.

He published three novels. Falling Up and The Fall of New York were followed by Cloud Eight, a story about an East Village couple who move to Provincetown, Mass., in the 1960s seeking the good life but who end up losing the thread of their marriage.

A graceful, touching eulogy was delivered at his Scranton, Penn., funeral by Anthony Piccolo '61. The eulogy recalled Miles as a gifted storyteller who loved to watch and listen; an avid conversationalist; a professional, happiest when he was writing; a philosophic person always pondering the complexities of life and seeking control and understanding in his own terms; a man of wit and talent who brought many friends together, was loved by them and greatly missed by them in death. Miles is survived by his parents, Samuel and Mildred Donis, of Scranton, and by a brother and sister.

PIETER CORNELIS VAN DEN STEENHOVEN, who had just turned 35, went down on August 8. He was piloting a single-engine airplane when it crashed into the Santa Monica Bay off the coast of Malibu, Calif.

Pieter's list of accomplishments, concerns, and service was long and continuous. At Dartmouth, he was a member of the Dartmouth Christian Union, the White Church Fellowship, and Delta Upsilon fraternity. He spent a trimester as a junior in Tennessee in exchange with a black student from Fisk University. After graduation he spent a summer as a tutor with Project Head Start before obtaining a master's degree in city planning from the University of California at Berkeley.

Following a stint as a Navy fighter pilot, Pieter returned to his native Santa Monica where he owned and operated West Coast Bulb Company, a flower business. He became a city councilman and then mayor and during his two terms of office was able to promote many measures that bespoke his concern for the quality of life. "Meals on wheels" for senior citizens, a paramedic rescue service, low-income rental subsidies, controls on population densities, and the preservation of green space were just a few of the programs he initiated. He was active in a number of public-service organizations and with good reason was voted an Outstanding Young Man of the Year by the National Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Pieter was also an avid skier, mountain climber, flyer, scuba diver, and swimmer who swam at least a mile in the ocean each day of the year. He also loved Dartmouth and was generous with his support and his time.

A memorial service was held on August 14 at the First Presbyterian Church in Santa Monica and there was not enough room inside for all who congregated in loss and disbelief. He is survived by his mother and father, three sisters and their families, a world of friends, and an emptier mankind.

LAURA JANE VAN BUSKIRK died September 12 in Brussels, Belgium, after being hit by a passing car while she was riding a bicycle. Friends from Dartmouth had stopped at her home, as had many classmates traveling abroad, and she had gone out for groceries when she was struck. "Van B." was home visiting her family after finishing a job with a bank in Grenoble, France. She was about to begin work with the European Common Market.

Born in Cleveland, she grew up in Baltimore and attended Roland Park County School. At Dartmouth, she served on the councils of both the Cabin and Trail and Winter Sports divisions of the Outing Club. Fond of Mt. Moosilauke, she worked with the Ravine Lodge crew during the summer of 1979 and also led a freshman trip. A German and French major, she worked at the 1980 Winter Olympics in Lake Placid as an interpreter. She was active in the Episcopal Youth Association at Edgerton House and lived in One Occom during her senior year.

Many classmates returned to Hanover for the memorial service at Rollins Chapel, September 23, to be with the family and to show their love. Many of us will remember Van B. climbing Moosilauke in rain and snow, baking bread, dancing the Salty Dog rag, jogging in Hanover, smiling, and being a good friend.
